The CNSA is proud to present this webinar Allied health providing cancer survivorship care in collaboration with the Clinical Oncology Society of Australia, the Australian Cancer Survivorship Centre and Cancer Council Victoria.

This facilitated panel discussion will bring together experts to give insight on the context, challenges and opportunities on cancer survivorship care in the rural or regional setting.

The interactive webinar and expert panel will:

explore common unmet needs of regional or rural cancer survivors assist allied health professionals to identify and effectively manage these needs through evidence based tools and support discuss optimal care and communication of healthcare professionals when patients transfer between metropolitan cancer centres and rural and regional areas.

This webinar is targeted at allied health professionals who work in a rural or regional setting or interact with cancer survivors who move between metropolitan and rural or regional healthcare services
