This webinar:

- introduces frameworks and evidence about what helps to support research use within organisations
- discusses the barriers and enablers of integrating research into practice and provide examples of approaches to support evidence-informed practice
- provides examples of how organisations and practitioners have successfully combined research evidence with other types of knowledge to create impact or change.

This webinar is designed for program planners and practice managers involved in practice and organisational decision making. Practitioners looking for opportunities to strengthen evidence-informed decision making in their organisation, and researchers wanting to improve implementation of research findings will also find it useful.
