By the end of this webinar, attendees will be able to: – Understand the relationship between trauma, post-traumatic stress, and substance use – Identify how trauma-related issues can impact substance use treatment – Identify key elements of trauma-informed care – Understand evidence-based treatment options for co-occurring traumatic stress and substance use

About the presenters: Professor Katherine Mills is an NHMRC Senior Research Fellow and Director of Early Intervention and Treatment Research at The Matilda Centre. Her award-winning program of work focuses on improving our understanding of the relationship between mental and substance use disorders, evaluating innovative treatment approaches, and improving the translation of research into practice. In particular, Katherine's work focuses on the challenging area of post-traumatic stress disorder and substance use. Logan Harvey is an experienced clinical psychologist who has primarily worked in specialist substance use treatment services for clients with co-occurring mental health and substance use conditions. Logan is currently a PhD candidate at the Matilda Centre, where his research focuses on the relationship between Complex Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (C-PTSD) and substance use.
