Optimise your allied health workforce with a comprehensive guide to workforce planning.

Join Professor Susan Nancarrow as she guides you through the process of reframing your allied health workforce challenges into workable solutions using a proven methodology which has been developed with and adopted by allied health workforce leaders nationally and internationally over the last 20 years.

This workshop leads you through a step-by-step approach to workforce planning, starting with understanding the current state of your organisation's workforce, identifying existing challenges and projecting future needs and ideal outcomes. We will then guide you through the development of a workforce plan that aligns with your organisation's goals and objectives.
