2022 is a time to heal, a time to unite and a time to innovate.

In September 2022 leading experts and delegates from around the world will come together to explore the current developments, innovations, practice and research that unite and heal at the Wounds Australia 2022 Conference. A unique opportunity for professionals working in the field of wound management and care to participate in an exciting and challenging program. Delegates will actively engage with industry leaders and experts across a range of fields to reflect and critically assess the history of wound care, investigate current practise and the progress that has been made and explore opportunities for future innovations.
